

Put in the correct forms: Present perfect or past (simple or continuous)

Dear Eileen

I hope things are OK with you. The doctor came yesterday. He did not like my cough. I have been lying in bed looking at the ceiling since Tuesday, and I can tell you, I'm fed up with it. I have never been ill like this before - don't know what's happening to me. And the weather's terrible. It has been raining all day and I can't even have a cup of tea in the morning to cheer myself up, because the milkman has not come this morning. Don't know why - I'm sure I have paid his bill.

Alice got married last week, so now all Mary's kids have left home. She won't know what to do with herself, will she?

Lucy Watson moved (has moved) to Doncaster. Since Fred died she has been all alone. It was a heart attack, apparently. I'm sorry she went - We have been neighbours for over thirty years and she has always been friendly and ready to help out.

Amy (left) has left. My cleaning lady, you remember? I'm glad. She was not (has not been) much use and I have not trusted her since she broke all those plates and said it was the cat.

There has not been much change in the village. Some new people have taken over the shop. They seem quite nice. Hope they are more efficient than old Joe. No more news. Write when you've got the time.

Love, Emmy